

The 1998 "Coppertrees" Calendar

AROMATHERAPY AND BEAUTY THERAPY

Dear Friends,

Well, we're back again! Welcome to the 1998 "Coppertrees" calendar. A new technology, and a slightly different theme this year - we hope the photos give you a bit of a giggle!

Please accept our sincerest wishes for a very happy and prosperous 1998.

*Love,
Andrew & Frances*

January 1998

The "Bird of Paradise" flowers of the Canary Islands get their name because they resemble the beautiful birds, although which came first, the bird or the flower, is unclear.

And here's another clever little mimic on Tenerife!

The self-timer is a great invention.
This is Frances, Mum, Dad and myself at Sandy Lane, in Wiltshire.

Just one thing about self-timers - You must make sure the camera's on a sound base, so it doesn't tip backwards just before it goes "click"...

The best of American architecture, like this West Coast art gallery, is rather splendid.

The worst excesses are another matter entirely. Take, for example, the Excalibur Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas...

At its best, St. Lucia is a wonderful place, with lovely scenery, great flora, and wonderful weather.

On the other hand, when it rains, it really rains, as the couple wringing out their towel discovered.

Now this is what I call an outdoor swimming pool. William Randolph Hearst certainly had fun with his money, and Hearst Castle is probably the best example. As well as this pool, he had a heated, Olympic sized one indoors.

Every winery in the Napa Valley has its own inimitable style. The pergola-and-a-half was at the enormous vineyard owned by Francis Ford Coppola.

On the other hand, the picture of the other Frances is entirely in keeping with the spirit of fun at Clos Pergas!

This magnificent Bristlecone Pine has survived at the top of Sentinel Dome in Yosemite for several hundred years, maybe even longer.

This idiot stood on a rock in the Peak District!

One of these convertibles contains a perfectly normal human family. The other is a group of alien spies. Your guess!!

This is Fyfe and Helen inventing a new art form - the wedding photograph which looks like a Stranglers album cover!

Happy anniversary, you two!
